

CREATE Project Report

Policy Assessment and Mapping of Policy Tools

27 August 2018

Report Prepared by Michael Kenny, CREATE Project Principle Investigator (PI), Department of Adult & Community Education, Maynooth University (Ollscoil na h'Éireann Má Nuad), Siobhan O'Malley (November 2017 - May 2018), and Myriam Doyle, CREATE Project Research Assistant (September-October 2018).

Section 1: CREATE Project Context and Background

There are many legislative actions favouring adult education in Europe. For example:

- European Parliament Resolutions and European Commission reports Adult Learning: It's never too late to Learn (CEC 2006) and the Action Plan on Adult learning: It is always a good time to learn (CEC 2007).
- The Council's Resolution on a Renewed European Agenda for Adult Learning (CEC 2011) and the more recent Commission's Communication, Rethinking Education : Country Analysis Part I and Rethinking Education: Investing in skills for better socio-economic outcomes (CEC 2012b). Rethinking Education. The latter reports from 2012 highlight the significance of adult learning as a response to economic challenges.
- The adoption of the Economic and Employment policies of the Member States integrated guidelines for implementing the Europe 2020 strategy (CEC 2010) and the Europe 2020 Strategy (Council-of-Europe 2010).

Despite the financial resources available data suggests that EU regions face challenges in developing appropriate adult education (AE) policies, practice, and capacity to utilise funding available. In the period 2007-13 EU regions spent only 47.4% of allocated ESF (European Social Fund) funds for adult education and training with significant variation in funding uptake. The variation ranged from 12% uptake in Romania to 69% uptake in Latvia (McGregor and Sutherland 2014).

The Europe 2020 Strategy (Council-of-Europe 2010) aims to promote "... smart, sustainable, inclusive growth" with greater coordination of national and European policies. The Education & Training 2020 strategic framework presents four challenges for education and training systems by 2020:

- Making lifelong learning and mobility<sup>1</sup> a reality
- Improving the quality and efficiency<sup>2</sup> of education and training
- Promoting equity, social cohesion, and active citizenship
- Enhancing creativity and innovation, including entrepreneurship<sup>3</sup>, at all levels of education and training

While each EU country is responsible for its own education and training system EU policy seeks to support national actions and help address common challenges. These challenges include ageing societies, skills deficits in the workforce, technological developments and global competition. The foreword of the Education and Training Monitor Report (CEC 2017) states "... quality education is the foundation for a Europe that is fairer, more inclusive, more resilient and more innovative than today". The Education and Training Monitor Report (CEC 2017) also states "... poor education policies can ... deepen social and economic gaps ... Europe must put education and training at the top of its political agenda".

In the field of adult education, the ET2020 targets a 15% adult<sup>4</sup> engagement in adult learning by 2020. European adult learning participation rates vary greatly. Overall, participation rates stagnated and range from a low of 1.4% to a high of 31.6% (2012) across European countries. Participation rates are especially disappointing for low-skilled and older adults.

In 2016 the average participation was 10.8% with only 7 EU countries achieving the target rate. This constituted a slight increase on 2011 but the Education and Training Monitor report (CEC 2017) notes that “[A]s for adult participation in learning, there has been practically no progress since the 2015. At 10.8 %, the EU still seems far from the modest target of 15 % of adults participating in formal or non-formal education and training” (p.14).

The European Agenda for Adult Learning highlights the need to increase participation in adult learning of all kinds (formal, non-formal and informal learning) whether to acquire new work skills, for active citizenship, or for personal development and fulfilment<sup>5</sup>. The European Commission has placed emphasis on Member States making their adult learning policies more effective, more efficient (in particular as regards funding and cost-sharing mechanisms) and more coherent across policy fields.

The CREATE (Competitive Regions and Employability of Adults through Education) Project responds to this call. The CREATE project application document (March 2017) states

The overall objective of CREATE is to enhance the performance and efficiency of Adult Education (AE) by intervening at systemic level at the nexus between overarching EU Policy (EU2020) and implementation on the ground, i.e. regions tasked with policy formulation and implementation of education programmes. The EU recognises the need to act at local level to better coordinate and plan policies, including the various sources of funding that at times may generate confusion, i.e. Erasmus+, European Social Fund, and the European Regional Development Fund.

This report, CREATE Project Output 2 - Policy Assessment and Mapping of Policy Tools, is based on an online respondent survey distributed by the project partners. The purpose of the report is to “... define, identify and take stock of the ‘policy tools’ available within the regions and territories represented by the CREATE Partnership” (CREATE Project application March 2017). The Policy Assessment and Mapping of Policy Tools Report will provide a basis for the “...the classification and identification of policy tools, means and measures from real-life case scenarios” (CREATE Project application March 2017). The report will inform the development of the “... Tool Box (IO3) to be made available to all regional/local policy makers across EU for Adult Education” (CREATE Project application March 2017).

Adult learning policies are anchored in a variety of policy fields, and programmes take place in a variety of education and training institutions. Adult learning programmes are delivered by public agencies, by non-profit organizations and community organisations usually with public subsidies, and by private agencies with and without public subsidies. Adult learning policies are not confined only to policymaking of government education departments and ministries. Adult learning policies can range of over social protection, employment, and local development department and ministries and others.

The percentage (%) gross domestic product (GDP) spent on Education provides a numeric means of comparing the emphasis on education in each country. In 2016 general government expenditure on education in the EU-28 amounted to 4.7 % of GDP. As a percentage of GDP, the highest amounts were reported by Iceland (7.1 % of GDP), Denmark (6.9 %), followed by Sweden (6.6 % of GDP) and Belgium (6.4 % of GDP). (Source http://ec.europa.eu/eurostat/statistics-explained/index.php/Government\_expenditure\_on\_education).

The CREATE Project partners represent a mid to lower % GNP spent on education ranging from Ireland 5.32% and 55th on the OECD list to Romania 3.13% and 140th on the OECD list.

The CREATE Project: Background

introduction

The overall objective of the CREATE (Competitive Regions Employability of Adults through Education) Erasmus+ project is to enhance the performance and efficiency of Adult Education (AE) by identifying and disseminating the tools that exploit good practice in adult education policy making, implementation, and effectiveness. The EU recognises the need to act at local level to enhance coordination and planning of adult education policy, practice and funding (CEC 2012a) to achieve higher participation. Better coordination and planning will counter a mismatch between policy and reality at local level (CEC 2011). The outcome of the CREATE project will be an openly accessible CREATE virtual toolbox containing tools to enhance adult education policy making, implementation and evaluation. The development of this toolbox is be a step to empower regional and local authorities with policy instruments to better shape policies and programmes for adult education, thereby better tackling the challenges of EU society and economy.

The CREATE project outputs are:

CREATE project target groups

The direct target group of the CREATE project are the 29 local and regional authorities in 9 countries (P5 Adriatic Ionian Euroregion represents 26 regional/local authorities from 6 countries) who were invited to participate in the project. Thereafter, the CREATE project target group are local and regional authorities across the EU tasked with development and implementation of adult education policies and programmes to achieve EU targets for balanced socio-economic development. Other target groups are the providers, users, and adult education communities of practice identified as stakeholders in adult education policy formulation and implementation.

The CREATE project partners

Gap Analysis Survey & Report

The CRAETE Project seeks to create an EU wide toolbox for adult education policy making, implementation, effectiveness, and financial efficiency. At present, there is no classification taxonomy appropriate for an EU wide toolbox for adult education policy making, implementation, effectiveness, and financial efficiency. Such a toolbox would provide resources that could enhance policy making and implementation effectiveness. Such a resource could assist in addressing the regional disparities in adult education delivery and impact across Europe. The key element of the gap analysis report is to document current tools in use based on recommendations from policy makers and practitioners in the project countries. This gap report will be basis for the next project stage - to propose a classification methodology for such policy tools and networks across different policy settings, countries and adult education dimensions.

The process for preparing and pilot testing the CREATE gap analysis survey is outlined in the O2 Methodology Report and the analysis of collected data is detailed following.

Section 2: CREATE Gap Analysis Survey Findings

Introduction

The following section documents the responses from adult education policy makers and practitioners invited to respond to a fourteen (14) question online survey. Project partners jointly prepared and pilot-tested the survey as part of the intellectual output two (O2) work-package. When finalised the partners prepared an introductory message and distributed it to their target group. Details of the survey questions and their review are outlined in the CREATE Project O2 methodology document available from the project partners.

In the report tables following the survey respondents are classified P1 to P9 as per the CREATE project partners listing prepared by the project lead partner. The CREATE project partners are;

The body of this report presents data as provided by respondents to the project partner CREATE online survey. The report is therefore a summary of the range of sources that respondents identified as tools and networks/platforms to assist adult education policy makers and programme implementers optimise their effectiveness. The report summarises, in the order in which respondents completed the survey, the survey content.

Question 1 (Q.1.) Who are the Respondents?

The CREATE Project O2 survey was targeted at adult education policy makers and adult education practitioners familiar with policy-making, implementation, effectiveness, and financial efficiency issues. It is expected that these persons will be users of various adult education tools. This survey asks them for their recommendations. Table 1. numerates the number of valid respondents from each project partner (P.1-9) totalling 129 responses.

Table 1. Valid Responses per Project Partner

| Partner Code           | # Responses | Partner Country/Region   |

| P.9.            | 10          | Spain  |
| Total           | 129         | Nine project partners, seven countries + one pan European partner  |

26 responses came from two states in Germany (Partner (P) 1 and 2), 16 responses from the Czech Republic partner (P.3.), 10 responses from the Latvian partner (P.4.), 13 from the Croatian partner (P.5.), 30 responses from the Irish partner (P.6.), 8 from the Adriatic Ionian Euroregion partner (P.7., comprising Italy, Croatia, Albania, Montenegro, Bosnia Herzegovina and Greece), and 1 from a pan European partner (IHF). 16 responses came from the Italian partner (P.8.) and 10 responses came from the Spanish partner (P.9.).

Part 1 of the survey: Profile of Respondents

The first section of the survey asked 3 questions to profile the breadth and depth of respondent organisations / agencies work while protecting anonymity. As the reader will see in the following descriptive report the 129 survey respondents represent a wide range of roles, sectors, and levels of engagement within the adult education horizon for the 7 project partner countries and one pan European region.

Question 2 (Q.2.) asked respondents “At what level does your organisation/agency operate?”

54 of the 129 respondents said their priority level of operation was at a local level, 29 at a sub-national level, 26 at a national level, and, 4 at a European level. This totals to 113 respondents. One respondent stated their priority operation level was an Extra EU level, and one other stated it was at an International level. This leaves 14 non-respondents.

Table 2. Operational Level of Survey Respondents

| Respondent Priority Level of Operation | Number of Respondents | % of Respondents |
|--|-----------------------|------------------|
| Local Level                            | 54                    | 47.0             |
| Sub-National Level                     | 29                    | 25.2             |
| National Level                         | 26                    | 22.6             |
| European Level                         | 4                     | 3.5              |
| Extra EU / International               | 2                     | 1.7              |
| Total                           | 115            | 89.1      |
| Non-Responses                          | 14                    | 10.9             |

It is important to note that organisations generally operate at a number of different levels. While respondents provided this detail it is not provided here and respondents were classified according to their predominant operational level.

However, it is important to note the complexity of levels at which respondents worked. These included inter-regional and inter-national levels for a number of respondents, global and regional levels, sector specific and region within-a-country/micro local levels. Therefore, this survey collected data from active agencies operating at all levels of adult education policy making, implementation and impact determination. 14 respondents, or 10.9%, did not respond to this question.

Question 3 (Q.3) asked respondents about their primary role?

Respondents replied:

Table 3. Survey Respondents Primary Role

| Respondent Priority Role  | Number of Respondents | % of Respondents |
|---|-----------------------|------------------|
| Provider of Adult Education programmes  | 47                    | 41.6             |
| Active in Adult Education policy formulation  | 31                    | 27.4             |
| Higher Education /University  | 16                    | 14.2             |
| Provider of Adult Education funding   | 7                     | 6.2              |
| Conducts research in Adult Education  | 1                     | 0.9              |
| Other – These included agencies supporting VET policy, support services for other adult education organisations, providing management and consulting services, providing career guidance services, and a local development agency | 11                    | 9.7              |
| Total  | 113            | 87.6      |
| Non-Responses   | 16                    | 12.4             |

Over 40%, 47, of respondents reported their primary role as providers of adult education programmes. Therefore, they are practitioner organisations. 31 respondents, or 27%, are active in policy making as their primary role. 7 respondents, or 6.2%, self-identified as providers of adult education funding. 16 respondents (14%) identified higher education/university as their primary role. 1 respondent noted their primary role is conducting research in adult education. 11 respondents (10%) noted other primary roles including supporting vocational education and training (VET) policy, support services for other adult education organisations, providing management and consulting services, providing career guidance services, and local development. 16 respondents, or 12.4%, did not respond to this question.

It is important to note that organisations generally act in a range of different roles. This detail was provided by respondents but is not provided here for brevity purposes. As for Q.3. respondents were classified according to their predominant primary role.

Question 4 (Q.4.) asked what sector does the Organisation / Agency work in?

Table 4. What Sector does the Organisation / Agency work in?

| Respondent Sector of Operation   | Number of Respondents | % of Respondents |
|--|-----------------------|------------------|
| Public Sector  | 89                    | 47.0             |
| Private Sector   | 13                    | 25.2             |
| NGO  | 22                    | 22.6             |
| Other - EU agency, social co-operative, Catholic/ church/ private agency | 4                     | 3.5              |
| Total   | 128            | 99.2      |
| Non-Responses  | 1                     | 0.8              |

Over 40%, (47), respondents reported their primary role as providers of adult education programmes. Therefore, they are practitioner organisations/agencies. 31 respondents, or 27%, are active in policy making as their primary role. 7 respondents (6.2%), self-identified as providers of adult education funding. 16 respondents (14%) identified higher education/university as their primary role, and 1 respondent noted conducting research in adult education was their primary role. 11 respondents (10%) noted other primary roles including supporting vocational education and training (VET) policy, support services for other adult education organisations, providing management and consulting services, providing career guidance services, and a local development agency as primary roles. There was only 1 respondent who did not respond to this question.

Part 2 of the survey: Respondent Recommendations

The basic purpose of the CREATE Project survey was to gather a list of the tools and networks that respondent organisations/agencies use, or, are aware of for adult education policy making, programme planning, programme implementation, programme effectiveness, and, programme financial efficiency. The first question in Part 2, question 5 (Q.5.), asks respondents if they are aware of, or, do they use, any tools or resources that assists their organisation in a range of tasks. These tasks were

- a) Adult education policy making
- b) Adult education programme planning
- c) Adult education programme implementation
- d) Adult education programme effectiveness
- e) Adult education programme financial efficiency

Table 5. Respondent Awareness of or use of Tools or Resources in Adult Education Policy and Implementation

The response rate to this question was relatively high. 82.9 to 92.2% of respondents completed this question. Table 5 shows that only 19.6% of respondents reported awareness of tools for programme financial efficiency, but 48.7% of respondents were aware of tools for programme planning. On average, across the 5 tasks, 37.3% of respondents reported that they were aware of tools to assist them in their tasks, and 62.7%, almost one in every three respondents, were not aware. Having ascertained a 1 in 3 use or awareness of tools to assist them in adult education policy making, programme planning, programme implementation, programme effectiveness, and, programme financial efficiency the survey progressed to determining what tools respondents recommended.

The reader will note in the following report that the majority of tools reported by respondents are actually website information sources. The report concludes that in reality respondents are not aware of or do not extensively use adult education policy making or implementation tools.

Question 6 (Q.6.) Recommendations of tools for adult education policy making

The following is a screen shot of the online survey – Question 6. Question six (Q.6.) asked respondents to recommend up to 2 tools, in order of usefulness, that their organisation uses for policy making.

6. Please recommend up to 2 tools (eg. guidelines, checklists, case studies, resource packs, standard procedures, area wide methods, online datasets, or other), in order of usefulness, that your organisation/agency uses for Policy Making (Click here for example).

The recommendations provided in response to this question were complex and multi-faceted providing both explicit and implicit information valuable to the CREATE project. The reader should note that:

1. This question focuses on tools for policy making in adult education.
2. The question asks respondents to rate the tool as being very effective or effective.
3. The survey provides space for a comment on the reason for recommending this tool.

In reviewing the respondent’ responses the report writers noted overlap between the 2 recommendations, that some tools recommended in this section, (i.e. tools for policy making in adult education), are also recommended in other sections (programme planning, programme implementation, etc.), and that tools recommended by one respondent as a first recommendation were recommended by another respondent as their second recommendation. This does not cause difficulties for analysis, as the purpose of the survey was to list tools respondents recommend. Offering first and second recommendation was a means of asking respondents to be critically reflective in the tools they recommended.

It was noted that some recommendations were repeated. Multiple recommendations of the same reference arising from question 6.a. (1st Recommendation) are summarised in a composite table of frequent mentions (Table 6.0.) following. Table 6.a. and table 6.b. summarise the first and second recommendations made by respondents in relation to tools for adult education policy making.

In answering most respondents made reference to web sites that respondents perceived as valuable tools for adult education policy making, specific tools were generally not noted, and respondents predominately provided general resource recommendations.

Frequent Mentions: Respondents recommended relatively few specific tools to assess financial efficiencies in Adult Education. Respondents to the Irish (P.6.) project partner made 9 recommendations with SOLAS mentioned twice and Education and Training Boards Ireland (ETBI) mentioned twice. It is noted that all recommendations were general. The German partner received 2 recommendations, the Spanish partner 5, the Latvian partner 6, the Czech Republic partner 2, AIE 2 recommendations and the Italian partner received 1 recommendation. None were multiple recommendations. The mentions are summarised following:

Section 3: Collaborative Frameworks/Networks

Section 3 of the CRAETE Project survey asked respondents for recommendations of collaborative frameworks/networks that facilitated better collaboration between agencies, sectors, regions and countries at various levels to enhance adult education for civil and economic development.

The following is a screen cast of the narrative introduction from the online survey

Page 4: Section 3: Adult Education Collaborative Frameworks/Networks

Section 3 asks you about your awareness, knowledge, and use of collaborative frameworks/networks that enhance policy making and practice for effective adult education.

There is a need for 'Structured collaborative frameworks to bring together policy makers, adult education and local economic development'. This survey asks for your recommendations of networks/platforms that enhance collaboration between agencies, sectors (click here for definition of sector), regions and countries at national/sub-national/local level (for example Länder, Comunidades Autónomas, Regioni, etc.) to enhance adult education for civic and economic development.

Recommended frameworks should meet at least 3 of the following criteria:

1. Has a structure (physical or virtual)
2. Shares ideas / exchange information
3. Meets at least two times per year
4. Has shared objectives

Please go to Question 11.

Question 11 (Q.11.) Awareness of collaborative frameworks/networks. Question eleven (Q.11.) asked respondents if they were aware of collaborative frameworks/networks to enhance adult education for civil and economic development.

- 11. Are you aware of or do you use any networks/platforms that enhance collaboration between organisations/agencies, sectors, sub-national administrative areas, and/or between countries for better adult education outcomes? (For examples of collaborative networks/platforms click on each of the following; AONTAS CEN, the Baltic Sea States Subregional Co-operation \(BSSSC\) network, the Bündnis für Lebenslanges Lernen \(BLLL\) Alliance, and the European Association for the Education of Adults \(EAEA\) voice of non-formal adult education in Europe).

If Yes to any of the above please go to Q.12. If No, please go to Section 4. Q.13.

Question 11. Are you aware of or do you use any networks/platforms that enhance collaboration between organisations/agencies etc.

The results show that the majority of respondents to this survey are not aware or do not use a framework/network/platform that promotes collaboration between organisations or agencies from micro-level to EU level. However, the results are not unanimous amongst partners.

When disaggregated the response regarding awareness of adult education tools at national level four of eight respondent groups showed awareness and only one, the German project partner, had more positive (Yes) than negative (No) responses to recommend frameworks/networks/platforms – see following.

Competitive Regions and Employability of Adults Through Education www.projectcreate.eu

The response regarding awareness of adult education tools at sub-national level was very similar – see following.

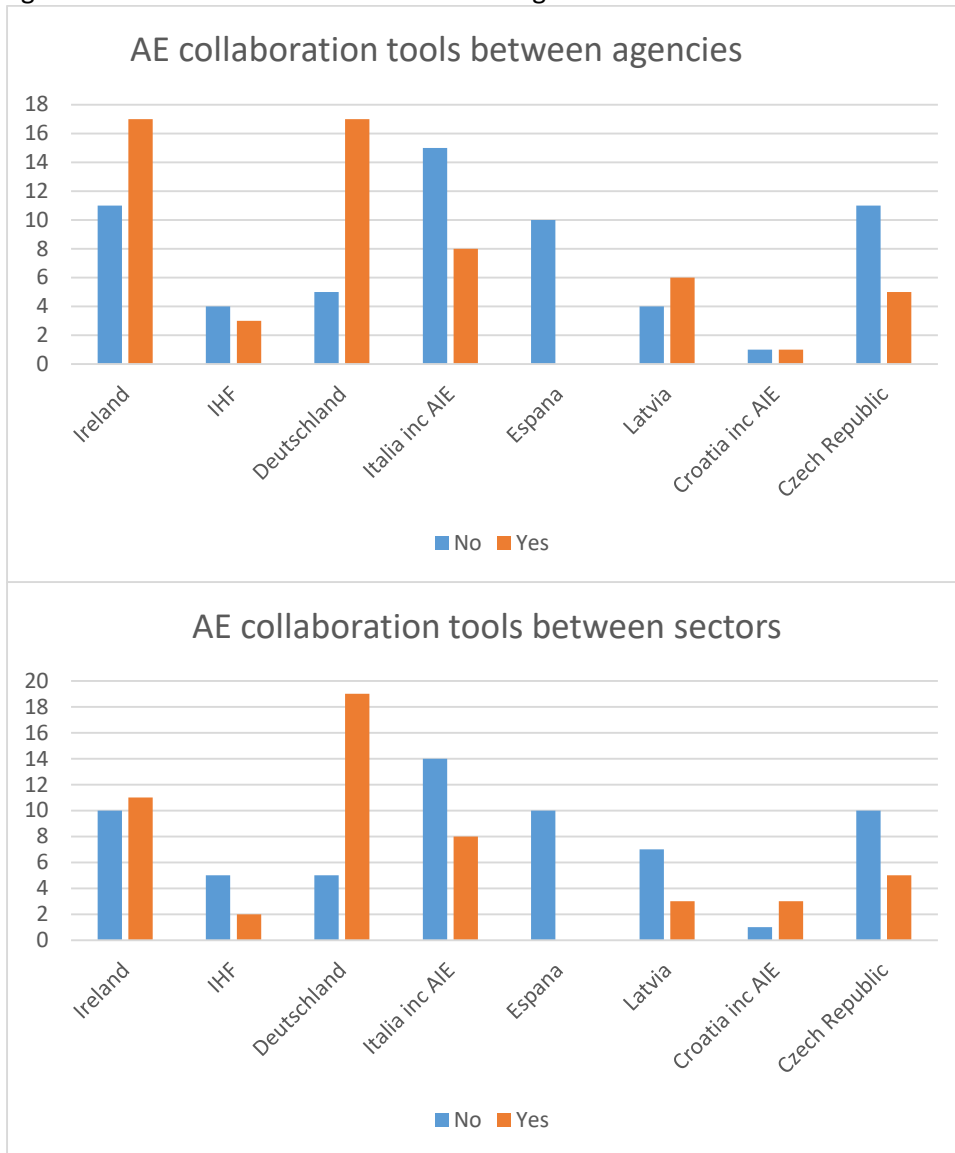

The findings regarding awareness of adult education collaboration tools at European level shows a similar response four of eight respondent groups showed notable awareness and only one, the German project partner, having more positive (Yes) than negative (No) responses to recommend frameworks/networks/platforms – see following.

Competitive Regions and Employability of Adults Through Education www.projectcreate.eu

The response pattern is replicated for awareness of adult education collaboration tools between agencies and between sectors - see following.

Points of note:

- Respondents to the CREATE partner in Ireland were aware or used network tools between agencies and at national level and sub-national level.
- CREATE project partner IHF, pan-European agency based in Brussels, is aware or uses platforms for collaboration at EU level but is not aware or does not use platforms at any other level (national, sub-national, sectoral and agency levels).
- The Deutschland project partner uses or is aware of platforms at EU, national, sub-national, sectoral and agency levels.
- The Spanish and Czech Republic partner respondents show low awareness or use of collaboration tools at any level.
- The Croatian project partner (including English and Italian members) is aware or uses collaboration tools at all levels except but response numbers are relatively low.
- The respondents to the Latvia partner show greater awareness of collaboration tools at inter-agency and sector levels.

The numerical value of respondents to question 11 is as follows.

- a. If 'Other Tools' please specify

This question seeks input from respondents on the tools that could enhance policy-making, planning, implementation and determining effectiveness of Adult Education programmes
The following is a diagrammatic representation of responses.

Question 13.a. Response per CREATE Project Partner

The reader will note the variation in the responses.

- There is a demand for tools appropriate to assist in programme planning, implementation and effectiveness assessment in adult education.
- Tools to assess the effectiveness of adult education programmes are the tools most in demand.
- Many partners identified tools to measure the efficiency of funding as a great need.

Question 13.b. Areas where tools were recommended.

Tools to evaluate the effectiveness of AE were mentioned 60 times, followed by tools for the funding efficiency mentioned 48 times. Tools for the implementation of adult education programmes, policy making and planning adult education programmes were mentioned from 33 to 36 times.

The following are the narrative responses to Question 13 as provided by respondents. Responses are presented as respondents wrote them.

One respondent noted: “What do you mean by effectivity of funding?”. Another noted, “Adopt the law of adult education“(Latvia P.4.).

Question 14. Response to “This survey was not applicable to my role/ occupation”
14. Survey not applicable

 This survey was not applicable for my role/occupation

Question 14 gave respondents the option of noting that the survey was not applicable to them. 28 or almost 22% of respondents selected this option. However, 50% of these respondents had already completed the survey. This indicates that though project partners targeted the survey at adult education policy makers and practitioners some do not believe that tools to assist policy making, implementation or effectiveness assessment is relevant to them. Yet, 50% of those have valuable responses to offer and completed the survey.

Section 3: Conclusions and Recommendations for the CREATE Project OER

The purpose of the Policy Assessment and Mapping of Policy Tools Report, based on 129 respondents to an online survey, seeks to “... define, identify and take stock of the ‘policy tools’ available within the regions and territories represented, as well as in the countries represented by the CREATE Partnership” (CREATE Project application March 2017). The outcome is 122 recommendations of tools that respondents use, or are aware of, which assist in policy-making, implementation, and assessing effectiveness in adult education programmes. Readers will note some level of overlap, some of the recommendations are general information websites, and that there are relatively fewer recommendations of tools that assess programme and financial efficiency of adult education delivery. However, this listing is a valuable resource for the adult education sector and is the foundation to prepare the CREATE online Open Educational Resource (OER) to make these sources available to policy makers and practitioners.

The report also lists 63 networks or platforms that facilitate collaboration between adult education policy makers and practitioners. The networks range for local to European level networks, and provide cross-sectoral and cross-agency collaboration along with cross-border cooperation.

Finally, the report identifies tools that, respondents suggest, would assist them in better policy-making, programme planning, delivery, and assessment of adult education programmes. The report provides the project partners with the basis for completing Output 3 of the CREATE Project.
