The Irish Theological Quarterly is a refereed journal of systematic, moral, and historical theology, and of sacred scripture, founded in the Pontifical University at St Patrick's College, Maynooth. It is committed to the advancement of constructive and critical scholarship in these areas and welcomes to its pages theologians from the international forum. Whereas its primary emphasis is on classical and contemporary theological issues, it also invites contributions from ancillary disciplines (such as philosophy, classical studies, and the social sciences) inasmuch as they have a direct bearing on theological reflection. Rooted in the Catholic tradition, the ITQ aims to be a place of discussion that is informed by this tradition, but it encourages equally an ecumenical and interfaith exchange in its presentations.

The ITQ carries articles by leading theologians who are international experts in their respective fields and is also a forum for young theologians to publish their research findings. It furnishes competent book reviews to keep readers informed about the current state of scholarship in theology, biblical studies, church history and cognate disciplines. It aims to provide commentary on intellectual developments that are of theological interest.

Manuscripts should be submitted in MS Word as an email attachment, to: Suzanne Mulligan, Editor, Irish Theological Quarterly, St Patrick's College, Maynooth, Ireland. (itq.editor@may.ie) The author must certify that the article is not being submitted simultaneously to another periodical.

Submit reviews/shorter notices by e-mail attachment (in Microsoft Word) to the review editor (itq.revieweditor@nuim.ie).

The preferred length for an article in the ITQ is circa 7,000 words, although occasionally contributions of up to 10,000 words may be considered.

All manuscripts submitted for publication to the ITQ should be written in grammatical, idiomatic English, consistently employing gender-inclusive language where appropriate. Authors for whom English is not their native tongue are asked to have their manuscripts corrected of errors in language and style prior to submission.

If possible, use Microsoft Word and ensure that all files are complete, including all necessary bibliographical details. The author's name must not appear on one of the two hard copies submitted, but please ensure that name, postal address, email and telephone/fax numbers are given clearly with submission.

In submitting your manuscript follow carefully the Guidelines for Contributors on manuscript formatting and presentation that is available on request from the editor, or on the website: www.journals.sagepub.com/home/itq (under Submit Paper).

Should your article be accepted for publication, you will need to sign and return a publishing agreement (sent to you by the editor). Authors will receive a proof copy of their article to correct (sent electronically as a pdf file), and, on publication, controlled access to a PDF of the published article and one copy of the issue of the Journal in which it appears.
